Excerpt: . . . and Efficiency in the preparation of its outlines of the organization of the United States Government. 1 They differ from those outlines, however, in that whereas the commissions report showed only organization units, the presentation herein has been carried far enough to show the seronnel embraced in each organization unit. These outlines are of value not merely as an effective means of making known the organization of the several services. If kept revised to date by the services, they constitute exceedingly important tools of administration. They permit the directing personnel to see at a glance the organization and personnel at their disposition. They establish definitely the line of administrative authority and enable each employee to know his place in the system. They furnish the essential basis for making plans for determining costs by organization division and subdivision. They afford the data for a consideration...
