That after the death of said Joseph Combs, the executors of James English, dec. the second, (who was one of the children of Doctor James English, named in the will of David Combs,) obtained a decree in Chancery, for the sale of the real estate of James English second, dec. , to carry into effect the will of the said James Den ex dem. Ahruhams v. English ct al. English, dec. That the executors of said James English, dec. exposed to public sale, all the right, title and interest of said James English second, dec. in the farm in controversy, as a portion of the real estate of James English, dec. the second. And the same was struck off to the lessor of the plaintiff, and a deed from the executors duly made therefor, agreeably to law. (Pro ut same.) That said James English second, dec. , one of the children of Doctor James English, was living at the date of the will of David Combs, and at his death; but died during the lifetime of Joseph Combs, on the 7th day of May, 1834, leaving one child, who died an infant prior to the sale to the lessor of the plaintiff, and the death of said Joseph Combs. It is further admitted by the parties, that Doctor James English the first, named in the will, after the death of David Combs, to wit, on the 13th day of July,...
