Excerpt: . . . 11 to find out how we can better serve tribal law enforcement, how we can get that information to them more quickly, how we can provide them with better training, and how we can make sure our funding resources respond to their actual needs. In February, I highlighted the Department of Justices new website which was created specifically for Indian Country. That website features information on grants, training, technical assist-ance, publications, and conferences that can help tribal law en-forcement. This new website is one of the many areas in which DOJ is reaching out to tribal law enforcement. In 2005, I established the Office of Justice Programs Council on Native American Affairs. This council coordinates OJPs efforts on behalf of tribes and serves as a liaison with other Department of Justice components on tribal issues. I am very happy to...
